Prez' message: I must be the most boring person alive, as the first thing I wrote on my new 2014 calendar was the date of the HUB Club Annual Meeting, January 19th. I know the cut-off date for RSVPing isn't for five more days from now (January 5th), but it's going to be one sad, sorry get-together based on turnout so far ☹

So here's what I'm going to do (officers not eligible): the first person who reads this message and responds to me via email or phone will get their entire lunch that day paid for! We were already subsidizing some of the costs associated with this event, but one lucky winner is going to be able to come at completely no cost! May the odds be ever in your favor!

ROSE BOWL PARADE 2014 Year of the Horse

Scripps Miramar Saddlebreds is comprised of ranch owner Michele Macfarlane, her co-driver, equine veterinarian, Dr. Donald Trunk, and her close friends Lynnda Mika Tedokon Martin, Julia Chen, Susie Ching Robinson, Samantha Jade Ching Robinson and Theo Mar. This spectacle truly represents a once-every-12-years cycle of the horse, which appears in the Asian zodiac.

61. Scripps Miramar Saddlebreds

Marshal: Michele Macfarlane

The Scripps Miramar Saddlebreds first appeared in the Rose Parade in 1962. American Saddlebreds have the size and beauty of the Thoroughbred but retain the ability to learn easy-riding gaits from the selective foundation breeding of the Narragansett Pacer. They are used for riding, to pull carriages and other work and are prized for beauty, eagerness, strength and stamina. Each year Scripps Miramar presents a newly themed turnout, with the goal of promoting and introducing to the general public a new and contemporary equine theme. The costumes are custom-tailored Imperial garments made of the finest bullion embroidered silks. Scripps Miramar commissioned a four abreast harness emulating jewel-encrusted "dragon skin." Each of the four hand-crafted harnesses is uniquely styled and one-of-a-kind in the world. Embellishments of gold adorn the horses' hooves and legs. And each is attached to a parcel-gilt ceremonial pagoda wagon replete with finely carved mythical creatures, hanging lanterns and relief sculpture.

Member news:

Possum Lodge Adds A New Member

What seemed like a good idea in early October now has me second guessing my sanity hearing that the temps are going to drop to negative numbers tonight, but despite all that - The Possum Lodge Gang adopted a new family member in October. We welcomed home Clear Meadows After Dark, aka "Afton". She is a 7 year old welsh pony that rides and drives. The plan is that she will be the grand-children's pony - though she was a little bit of a handful at first. Afton came from a horse farm and had never experienced a "real farm" with pigs, beef cattle, sheep, chickens and a demented goose. Farm equipment was a new adventure too, but with patience and lots

Afton on arrival

Afton after a spa day at Possum Lodge of walkabouts around the farm, she has settled down nicely.

I'll keep you posted on our Possum Lodge adventures come Spring!! Donna

New Horse at Theresa's: Nothing much to say about Phinn. Susan Keating drove him once and a girl rode him once. He has a fat short neck and an ugly head. Sweet enough, I suppose. Time will tell. I do own a camera but I haven't figured out how to get the photos out of the little box

SLEIGH FUN: Happy New Year to all!!! Just in case any of you were walking in Leroy Oaks Forest Preserve and thought you saw tracks from a sleigh, YOU DID! Grace and Reiner and Lonnie and I hitched Casey to Grace's sleigh on Saturday and had a ball! Turned a few heads, as you can imagine. Let's just say Casey is up for pony of the year in my book. I tried to get the picture from my cell phone to my computer so I could share the fun, but it won't go. Hope you all enjoyed that mild day as much as we did. Stay safe and warm, Judy Dowling

Julius and Sandra

used to pulling the sleigh because it pulls so differently. Horses must have a couple years' experience pulling a carriage before you start training for sleigh driving. Driving the sleigh is so much fun! When driving, you must make very large circles to turn the sleigh because of the snow runners. Just dress warmly and you will be surprised how invigorating the cold weather is. After driving, I put coolers on the horses in their stalls and give them extra hay to make sure they are warm and comfortable. They also get carrots for treats! Enjoy the photos! I hope we have lots of snow this winter so I can drive all winter. It is also a great way to keep the horses in shape. Sandy Nowicki

I have attached some photos of Julius and Chloe pulling my 1885 cutter through the snow for the January Hub Club newsletter. These photos were taken last week. My cutter was built in Michigan. It is amazing to think that people traveled long distances by sleigh in the winter. They often drove on the ice covered rivers because the roads were impassable when there was snow. My cutter is original except for the curved panel which connects the floor to the front of the sleigh. This panel was restored when I bought it a couple of years ago. It took a lot of training to get Julius and Chloe

I have just authored, illustrated, and published my second children's book, "Sparkles the Rainbow Pony". Although it is written for children, the book appeals to people of all ages. Sparkles has many adventures and brings joy and happiness to many people throughout the book.

Sparkles the Rainbow Pony includes 15 full color illustrations which I created in colored pencil and in gouache paint (a type of opaque watercolor). My new book is available now on www.amazon.com and on www.createpace.com. I will donate one copy to the Silent Auction at the Hub Club Annual meeting on January 19. You can also see Sparkles first book, "Sparkles the Christmas Pony," on www.amazon.com and on www.createpace.com. Attached is a picture of the cover of "Sparkles the Rainbow Pony." Thanks, Sandy Nowicki

CAA member Patrick Schroven (a carriage restorer in Belgium) announced that his firm has finished the restoration of their Dress Chariot by Fr. Flack of Vienna. The project took 3,900 hours to complete! Patrick wrote, "The carriage is set in our stable colors of cobalt blue with golden yellow, and the panels bear our family coat of arms and crest. The pure silk cloth for the interior upholstery, an exact copy from a royal carriage, was specially woven for us and the matching broadlace is true 'épinglé' carriage lace. This is a beautiful example of a late-nineteenth-century state vehicle and a fine addition to our private collection."

The Trio of Temperature Control

Ask The Vet
by SMARTPAK

Posted on December 17, 2013 by Dr. Lydia Gray

I live in Kentucky where slushy winter storms are very popular. I just got a new mare who has a thinner winter coat than the rest of my horses do, and when I went to the barn to feed this morning, she was shivering. I normally do not blanket my horses, and they usually have 24-hour access to pasture. I don't have a run-in shed for them, but when it gets really bad out, I usually open the gate that lets them into our barn so they can get under it and out of the bad weather. I was wondering if what the possibility is of my mare getting sick and what I should do. Thanks for your time and your advice, I really appreciate it. – KH, Kentucky

Dear KH,

Oops, you've caught me in the middle of holiday shopping at SmartPak, taking advantage of incredible deals to get Newmie-poo a new heavyweight blanket for this winter. He's become, err, too "big-boned" for his old one. That said, I agree with you that, in general, most horses do quite well at keeping warm simply when they are able to get out of the wind and rain.

According to NRC Nutrient Requirements for Horses, the "thermoneutral zone" for horses, or, the range of lower and upper temperatures in which the horse is capable of maintaining its body temperature with little or no energy expenditure, has been reported to be as low as 5°F and as high as 77°F. Now, these aren't hard and fast numbers, as many other variables can factor in such as individual horse variation, whether wind and precipitation/humidity are also present, and what temperatures the horse is acclimatized to. But these values give you a good idea of the range of temperatures that horses can handle on their own.

In your case, it sounds like you have a mare that isn't used to the weather yet where she is located now and might need some outside assistance in maintaining her core temperature. A turnout blanket with some fill (medium or heavy) is a good choice since it will also repel water. And if your herd tends to be on the rowdy side, get one made of high denier or with rip-stop technology to help avoid those "friendly" tears. Just make sure that someone checks the blankets daily, because torn apparel or loose straps can be dangerous, while dramatic temperature changes or a soaked garment make things worse than not wearing anything at all. Another factoid from the NRC: heat loss during cold exposure can be reduced 9% by shelter alone, 18% by blankets, and 26% by shelter AND blankets.

That really is the main reason for providing shelter and blankets to horses in the winter: to avoid heat loss, which requires energy expenditure (e.g. shivering). We're not really worried that horses are going to "catch a cold" or come down with the flu if they get chilled; we're concerned that using energy to keep themselves warm is going to cause weight loss. Therefore one way to make sure horses have plenty of energy to maintain their weight and their core temperature is to feed more hay in the winter. Not only will this add calories or energy to the diet, the process of fiber fermentation in the hind gut generates heat and literally warms the horse from the inside out.

The winter "Trio of Temperature Control" then is shelter, blankets, and hay. Provide your horses, especially your mare, with these three advantages during cold months and trust me, they will thank you!

ADS ANNUAL APPEAL

This is an exciting year for the ADS Fund Annual Appeal. The ADS has received a $50,000 challenge grant from an anonymous driving family. They have told us that they wish to support long term development of the sport, youth driving and educational programs and they are willing to invest heavily by their generous donation. But the ADS needs you to help us raise the matching $50,000.

Two things are very important. First we want to match the challenge. Second, we need high participation by ADS members. The second factor is as important as the first because it illustrates wide support for driving in North America. It includes all of you as supporters of the endowment.

Your Annual Appeal gift and the matching gift will be invested in the ADS Fund Endowment. As we grow the endowment we build a strong foundation from which we can improve our sport for all our members. The dividends and interest from the investments allow us to fund the activities listed in the accompanying brochure, and many more, for decades to come.

Since 2005 the ADS Fund has granted more than $25,000 to support local clubs and fledgling competitions. The Fund will continue to provide grants for youth and adult education, and the ADS will also be able to initiate new programs. New initiatives will include increased support to help educate our officials, stronger outreach to breed partners, including training for breed judges, as well as assistance for new shows by providing financial support so they can have a full complement of officials.

We would like to expand ADS webinar offerings, the number and quality of the clinics, and start a speakers' bureau to send knowledgeable people to club meetings and equine expos. We want to add value to your ADS membership and attract new members to our sport, growing the number of drivers and friends in our driving universe.

Driving in the Midwest, ADS membership and club activity has been growing and we can utilize this resource is promoting driving. As your president, I encourage your support for this perpetual financial resource to support important driving programs now and in the future. Please send in a donation, even if just $20, If you did not get a mailing from the ADS, email me at frei@chorus.net, John Freiburger

$50,000 Challenge

The 2013 Annual Appeal hopes to meet a generous $50,000 challenge grant offered to us by an ADS driving family. Your gift will be invested in the ADS Fund Endowment to provide perpetual financial resources for the sport of carriage driving.

The ADS has provided financial support to Young Drivers, Local Driving Clubs, Fledgling Competitions, International Teams and Competitors, and has provided educational opportunities for the entire North American driving community.

Your donation will help us reach this year's $50,000 goal. If this goal is achieved, it will be matched by an anonymous ADS family who has made a generous pledge this year only.

Please help the ADS continue efforts to grow the sport across North America by providing a perpetual financial resource for important driving programs now and in the future.
